NNABA was established in 1973 for the purpose of “promoting unity, cooperation, and the interchange of ideas among its members, striving for justice and effective legal representation for all Indian peoples, providing a forum for the discussion, examination and resolution of problems of concern to Indian people.” Today, as it enters its fifth decade of service, NNABA continues to serve as the national association for Native American attorneys, judges, law professors and law students. NNABA’s programming focuses on fostering development of Native American lawyers, and addressing social, cultural, and legal issues affecting American Indians, Alaska Natives, and Native Hawaiians.
